SOUL-TROUBLE.
There is no trouble in the world like soul-trouble. The torments of a guilty conscience, who can endure? "A wounded spirit, who can bear?" Next to the anguish of waking up in eternity to find the soul is "lost," is the bitterness of making that discovery ill time, though the great gulf be not yet finally "fixed," nor the soul's doom eternally sealed.
Let a man be made alive to the truth that the end of a sinful life is hell, and that such is the very life he has led: let the Spirit of God remind him that the next pulse-beat, the next
