Description

Drawing upon his knowledge of God's Word, his many years in evangelism and the many questions he had received over those years, Harold Barker held a special series of question-and-answer meetings. This book is the substance of those meetings.

Some of the questions answered: How may someone know when he has repented enough? Is there such a thing as being blotted out of the book of life? How can you prove that the Bible is inspired? Since God knows all our needs, why should we pray? These and more than one hundred other interesting questions with their illuminating answers are found in this book, arranged by subject.
