Description

"A golden bell and a pomegranate, a golden bell and a pomegranate, upon the hem of the robe round about." Exodus 28:34

I've had these words hanging in the parlour for a year. They are just over the door leading into the shop. Folks have suggested that some other text would be better. Now, I don't think so at all, for I often look up at the words as I go about my work, and bless the Lord for the message they brought me a year ago.

I was a bit disappointed, that evening, when a strange preacher gave out those words for his text. "Going back," I said, "to Jewish
