Description

From the apostolic age down to our own, God has had His witnesses in Italy. The New Testament Scriptures mention many Italian Christians among the early disciples. In these pen sketches from real life, taken from original sources, the author gives us glimpses of the lives of Italian believers of the last century.

These eleven brief sketches of devoted advocates of the gospel in Italy - such as Count Guiardini, an Italian nobleman; Rosetti, an Italian poet; and Dominico, an Italian Christian peasant - will prove an inspiration and a help to workers in God's harvest fields today. All are noble accounts of conversion, perseverance in the faith, persecution, suffering and victory!
