Description

Andrew Miller looks at the Christian's standing, state and hope as well as other important aspects of the believer's life. The author states in his introduction, " The following brief "Meditations" have been written chiefly with the view of helping young Christians. The subjects embraced are both fundamental and practical; and all necessary to the complete understanding of Christianity. May the Lord, in His grace, be pleased to use what has been written, for His own glory, and the good of many souls."
