Description

It is related of a dying infidel watchmaker in the Midlands that, during his last twenty-four hours, he repeated over and over again these words, "I'm going, I don't know where!"

The language of his life - time had been, "I'm going, I don't care where." But, now that the weight of death's icy hand was upon him, an his hardened carelessness and bravery forsook him; and had you investigated what was wrapped up in that dying cry, "I'm going, I don't know where," there is little doubt you would have found that it meant this, "I'm going, utterly overwhelmed with the question, Where?"

Who has not heard the excited cry of
